

Authors

Birgit Englert is a post-doctoral researcher and lecturer at the Department of African Studies at the University of Vienna. Her field is contemporary history, development studies and popular culture with a regional focus on Eastern and Southern Africa. Her doctoral dissertation focused on land rights in Tanzania and currently she works on popular culture and youth in this country. E-Mail: birgit.englert@univie.ac.at

Christine Ludl finished her PhD in 2008 at the Free University of Berlin, the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris (IEP) and the affiliated Center of International Studies and Research (CERI), Paris. She is currently working for the Centre Marc Bloch, Centre Franco-Allemand de Recherches en Sciences Sociales, in Berlin. E-Mail: chludl@zedat.fu-berlin.de

Uta Reuster-Jahn has been lecturer in African Philology at the Department of Anthropology and African Studies, University of Mainz, Germany. She has done her doctoral dissertation on folk narratives of the Mwera in Tanzania. Recently her research is focusing on Swahili youth language, Swahili popular literature and the new Swahili music called Bongo Flava. She has published numerous articles on these topics and is a co-editor of the online journal "Swahili Forum" (<http://www.ifeas.uni-mainz.de/SwaFo/>). E-Mail: rejahn@uni-mainz.de

Alain Ricard is presently Directeur de Recherche (research professor) with the French National Center for Scientific Research (CNRS), attached to LLACAN and teaching at the INALCO in Paris. His field is African languages and literatures, including drama and popular literatures. He has published widely on African literature, theatre and popular culture in French and English and has also produced two films on concert-party. E-Mail: aricard3@numericable.fr

Anne Schumann is a PhD candidate at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. She has worked on popular music in South Africa and her current focus is on political debates in popular music of Côte d'Ivoire. E-Mail: a.schumann@soas.ac.uk