

Authors

Eva Freudenthaler studied African and Development Studies at the University Vienna. Research stay in Kenya. She is currently studying law with a focus on human rights.

Email: Eva.Freudenthaler@univie.ac.at

Oliver Human is a PhD candidate in the department of Anthropology and Sociology at the University of Amsterdam. His dissertation is interested in looking at how different forms of state craft meet in efforts to integrate TB and HIV services.

Email: olhuman@gmail.com or O.Human@uva.nl

Rita Kesselring is a PhD candidate at the Institute of Social Anthropology, University of Basel, who works at the intersection of legal anthropology and the anthropology of the body. She is particularly interested in the embodiment of experiences and the possibilities for emancipation from painful memories in a post-conflict setting. The frequent turn to legal measures to deal with past abuses poses the question of the justiciability of experienced injuries.

Email: Rita.Kesselring@unibas.ch

Henning Melber is Extraordinary Professor at the Department of Political Sciences/University of Pretoria, where he is affiliated to the Institute for Strategic and Political Studies (ISPA). As Senior Advisor and Director emeritus at The Dag Hammarskjöld Foundation he is based in Uppsala/Sweden.

Email: Henning.Melber@dhf.uu.se

Judith Van Allen has a PhD in political science from the University of California, Berkeley, USA. She is a long-time scholar-activist and is currently a Senior Fellow at the Institute for African Development at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY. She has written on the political economy of African women's activism since 1972.

Email: jv43@cornell.edu