

Autor*innen/ Authors

Esther Asenso-Agyemang is an early career development sociologist whose research interests are in the areas of transnational families; social policy; and technology in society. She is the Research Officer of the Gender Equitable and Transformative Social Policy for Post-COVID-19 Africa (GETSPA) Project at the Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana. She has worked previously on other development projects at the University. She is also a beneficiary of the "Building a New Generation of Academics in Africa" (BANGA-Africa) Project Grant and the Erasmus+ International Mobility Programme for Non-European Union Students Scholarship. Email: easensoagyemang@yahoo.com

Daniela Atanasova is a PhD student at the Department of African Studies at the University of Vienna and a member of the Research Platform Mobile Cultures and Societies. Her PhD is a historical study focusing on the social and spatial im/mobilities of women in Zambia, particularly women who have been (im)mobile in and between Eastern Province and the capital city Lusaka since the 1950s onwards. Email: daniela.atanasova@univie.ac.at

Eric Burton ist Assistenzprofessor für Globalgeschichte am Institut für Zeitgeschichte an der Universität Innsbruck. Im Anschluss an Studien der Internationalen Entwicklung und Kultur- und Sozialanthropologie an den Universitäten Wien und Dar es Salaam verfasste er seine Dissertation in Geschichte zum Afrikanischen Sozialismus in Tansania und den Entwicklungspolitiken der DDR und der BRD. Aktuelles Forschungsprojekt: "Drehkreuzen der Dekolonisierung: Kairo, Accra und Dar es Salaam, 1956-65". Email: eric.burton@uibk.ac.at

Martina Gajdos ist Psychologin und Afrikanistin. Sie ist Expertin für das Fulfulde und unterrichtet seit drei Jahrzehnten am Institut für Afrikawissenschaften der Universität Wien. Neben linguistischen Projekten arbeitet sie zu Wahrnehmungsprozessen, Konfliktprävention und Menschenrechten. Waren zu Beginn ihrer Forschungen Mali, der Senegal und Nigeria ihre Schwerpunktländer, so hat sie im letzten Jahrzehnt ihre Arbeitsregion auf ganz Afrika wie auch auf asiatische Länder ausgeweitet und engagiert sich im Aufbau demokratischer Institutionen. Email: martina.gajdos@univie.ac.at

Clemens Gütl holds a PhD in African History from the University of Vienna. He is Research Associate and curator for the African holdings at the Phonogram-marchiv of the Austrian Academy of Sciences. Gütl's academic interests include mission and colonial history of Africa, the history of African Studies and Egyptology in Austria and sound collections in African languages. He has received several awards for his scientific and curatorial work.

Email: clemens.guetl@oeaw.ac.at

Martha Lagace earned a PhD in anthropology from Boston University in 2018. Her field research has been conducted in Rwanda and northern Uganda. She is writing a book about motorcycle-taxi drivers and their world. She is Research Associate at the Public Education Institute of The Immigrant Learning Center, Inc., in Malden, Massachusetts. In Spring 2023 she is teaching African history at Boston College. Email: mlagace@bu.edu

Gana Ndiaye is an assistant professor of anthropology and ACM Mellon Faculty Fellow at Beloit College. Ndiaye's academic interests include Brazil-West Africa relations, transnational Islam, African languages, and Muslim Africa's 'Ajami literary traditions. Email: ndiayeg@beloit.edu

Patrick W. Otim is an Assistant Professor of History at Bates College, Maine, USA. He received his PhD in African history from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 2016 and started teaching at Bates in the same year. Patrick's scholarship focuses on the late precolonial and colonial history of northern Uganda. His current book manuscript, which is under contract with Ohio University Press in the New African Series, explores the transition from precolonial to colonial era. Patrick's most recent scholarly works have appeared in History in Africa, and Canadian Journal of African Studies. Email: potim@bates.edu

Leander Schneider is Associate Professor of Political Science at Concordia University in Montreal. His research focuses on the politics of development, political history in Tanzania, and, most recently, the flow of migrants from China to Africa. Email: leander.schneider@concordia.ca